^aThe Importance Index is the ratio of the department's heterodox productivity value to its overall productivity value.

^bTaken from Grijalva and Nowell (2008, Table 2, column 9, pp. 977–980).

^cPortland State U does not offer a Ph.D. in economics. The university offers degrees in urban studies and systems science, both of which offer an emphasis in economics.

^dThe ratio is less than 0.005.
