crisis expert professor wolff's recent work has concentrated on analyzing the causes and alternative solutions to the current global economic crisis

Richard Wolff is Professor of Economics Emeritus at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst and currently a Visiting Professor at the Graduate Program in International Affairs of the New School University in New York. He has a PhD in Economics from Yale University as well as degrees from Harvard University (history BA) and Stanford University (economics MA). He has authored or co-authored 10 books, over 50 scholarly articles and 75 popular articles.

His documentary film on that crisis, Capitalism Hits the Fan, has been regularly featured on LinkTV.com and can be previewed at www.capitalismhitsthefan.com. He also published a book of essays on the current crisis in 2010 entitled "Capitalism Hits the Fan: the Global Economic meltdown and What to Do About it".

Detailed information on and copies of his many writings, audios and videos of his media interviews, lectures, and classes, and his speaking schedule are all available at his website: www.rdwolff.com. Professor Wolff's public talks have been featured on ForaTV.com.

The screenshot shows the website for Professor Richard D. Wolff. At the top, there is a navigation menu with links for 'The Economic Crisis', 'Class Analysis', 'Economic Theory', 'Marxism', and 'Strategies for Social Change'. Below the navigation, there are social media icons for Facebook and Twitter. A sidebar on the left contains a menu with links for Home, Audio, Video, Online classes, Books, Non-English articles, About, and Contact us. The main content area features two featured courses: 'Marxian Economics - An intensive introduction' and 'Economic Crisis and Globalization'. Each course includes a video thumbnail, a brief description, and a 'Click here to watch lecture' link. The 'Marxian Economics' course is described as a four-part series providing a foundation in concepts like necessary and surplus labor, labor power, surplus value, exploitation, capital accumulation, and class structures. The 'Economic Crisis and Globalization' course is an eight-session series from Spring 2009, challenging conventional thinking about the crisis and the role of capital. At the bottom, there is a section for 'Upcoming Engagements' listing several events with dates and locations, such as a lecture at Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and a conference in Bordeaux, France.
