

International Institute of Social Studies (The Hague) of Erasmus University Rotterdam

The International Institute of Social Studies (ISS) is a leading academic centre for development studies, and a University Institute of Erasmus University Rotterdam (EUR). Post-graduate programs are conducted in English and are offered at Diploma, MA and PhD levels.

The International Institute of Social Studies has two academic positions in the fields of:

- A) Agriculture and Rural Development
- B) Children and Youth Studies

The Staff Group on Rural Development, Environment and Population studies, in which successful candidates will work, is engaged in teaching, research, advisory work and institutional capacity building on rural and human development, with a focus on agricultural and rural development, poverty, socio-economic security, population studies, and child and youth studies. Teaching and research by academic staff is marked by a commitment to the central role of equitable, broad-based and sustainable development. The group is also actively engaged in methodology teaching at both MA and PhD levels.

We are looking for candidates that will bring innovative research and teaching capacity in these fields. Experience with (field-based) research methods and gender analysis, and one of the following regional specializations (Sub-Saharan Africa, Latin America, and Indonesia) will be considered as a welcome addition.

While both appointments are envisaged at (Senior) Lecturer level, appointments at Associate Professor level can be considered, but only in the case of a more senior and exceptionally good candidate.

For the complete profile and more information on appointment and application please visit our website www.iss.nl.